THE 1916 FOOTBALL SCHEDULE ANNOUNCED

Season Opens at Home with Bowdoin. Good List of Games Arranged.

Manager Towne has completed next season's football schedule, which will consist of five out-of-town games and four in Middlebury. Only two new teams appear in the list, Bowdoin and Albany Normal College having displaced Tufts and Massachusetts "Aggies."

For the past few years Middlebury has been unfortunate in that the opening game has been played on foreign territory. Invariably the team has lost and this has had the effect not only of discouraging the eleven, but also of dampening the enthusiasm of the students.

So Middlebury is indeed fortunate in having so favorably known a team as Bowdoin for the opening clash of the season, and it is hoped the unfavorable conditions of the past curtain-raisers will be obliterated and that the entire student body will have an incentive to stand back of the team from the opening contest on Porter Field to the final whistle at Burlington, November 18. A real successful season demands the wholehearted support of the student body from the start, and as there will be opportunity to see the team in action against Bowdoin September 23, there seems to be no reason why the enthusiasm should lag up to the time of the Norwich and Vermont games, as has often been the case in the past.

Then the schedule seems to be especially well balanced in that it is arranged so that the team will develop gradually in order to be at its very best in the Norwich and U. V. M. games, which are the real objective games of the season. The complete schedule is as follows:

Sept.	23.	Bowdoin College at Middlebury.
Sept.	30.	Amherst College at Amherst, Mass.
Oct.	7.	Springfield Training College at Springfield, Mass.
Oct.	14.	Stevens Institute at Hoboken, N. J.
Oct.	21.	Albany Normal College at Middlebury.
Oct.	28.	R. P. I. at Middlebury.
Nov.	4.	Norwich University at Middlebury.
Nov.	11.	New Hampshire State at Durham, N. H.
Nov.	18.	University of Vermont at Burlington.

Kaleidoscope Shaping Up.

The 1917 volume of the Kaleidoscope is rapidly assuming form and members of the board promise a surprise when the book appears. Editor Adams contemplates the introduction of a number of new features and has enlisted the aid of a camera staff whose activities would do credit to a metropolitan daily.

Manager Harrison has awarded the contract for publishing the book to the Tuttle Company of Rutland.

Buildings Nearing Completion.

Work on Mead Memorial chapel has been held up the last few weeks owing to a delay in the shipment of materials. However, the windows have at last arrived and been put in, so that from the exterier, the new chapel seems practically completed. There is a large amount of work still unfinished inside, the completion of which depends upon the arrival of material. The heating system has been installed and in use for some time. The material for scaffolding is still in place and workmen are busy plastering and decorating. It will be some time before the floor can be put in place.

The removal of the last sections of staging from Hepburn Hall reveals the outside of the new dormitory in a finished stage with the exception of the windows which have not yet been put in. From any angle the building presents a pleasing appearance. A temporary heating system is being used so that the plaster and cement work has been carried on in spite of the cold weather. All the floors have been laid and some rooms are ready for the finishing touches, so one can get an idea of the size and location of the various suites.

Alpha Chi Dance.

A formal dance was given by Alpha Zeta of Alpha Chi in the McCullough Gymnasium Saturday evening, January 15. The gymnasium was simply but tastefully decorated with evergreen trees and banners. A part of the gymnasium was divided off by the trees to form an arbor and here refreshments were served during intermission. Mrs. John M. Thomas, Miss Eleanor Ross, Mrs. E. B. Clift, Mrs. A. Harriman, and Mrs. Bryant were the patronesses. The guests were Miss Katherine Fish of Vergennes, Miss Ruth Hilton of Richmond, Miss Sue Smith and Miss Mildred Munsen of Colchester, Miss Pauline Rowland, Miss Anne Fisher, Miss Louise Norris, Miss Louesa Bullis, and Miss Charlotte Marsh. The music was furnished by Wilson's orchestra.

Digging Out Old Corinth.

A lecture on excavations in Corinth was given by Mr. E. H. Swift of Princeton University in the Latin room Saturday evening, January 22. Before the war Mr. Swift was engaged in this work for some time, so was able to talk instructingly as well as very entertainingly upon his subject. He gave first a brief history of Corinth, then told how their work is carried on, and lastly discussed some of the finds they made. The lecture was illustrated by some very fine pictures taken by Mr. Swift during his work in Greece.

Final Exams. On.

The final examinations for the first semester begin Thursday, January 27th and continue through Saturday, February 5th.

Waubanakee Picture.

The Waubanakee Society assembled in the Jackson studio on Monday, December 24, when the group picture for the Kaleidoscope was taken.

INTER-CLASS BASKET BALL SERIES STARTS

Seniors and Sophs. Trim Freshmen and Juniors in Opening Clashes.

The basket ball series got under way Wednesday night, January 12, when the Seniors and Sophomores vanquished the Freshmen and Juniors respectively. Both games were hard-fought all the way and were well played considering the lack of practice. The new rules, which are used this year, caused a large number of fouls and consequently slowed up the play somewhat. They will undoubtedly work out well in the end and better results will be noticed in the future games.

The band, which has been a very pleasant feature of past series, was unable to play, owing to the absence of a number of men, but it is assured they will be on hand for the remaining games to liven things up a bit.

Enthusiasm was the lone characteristic of the first contest in which the Seniors defeated the Freshmen by a score of 16 to 9. Although they never were in the lead, the under-classmen put forth an exhibition which caused the fourth year men great anxiety. With a comfortable lead of 10 to 5, as a result of the first half, 1916 became overconfident and were loath to cover their opponents in the second stanza, when 1919 found the net for two successive baskets from the floor. When the repeated bombardment of Lamere and Robinson began to show its effects upon the score board, after the withdrawal of Brick Cowles, the freshmen became bewildered and ran wild about the court. In the meantime the freshmen were successfully operating the mechanism of their well lubricated machine which apparently had recovered from the breakdown in the earlier part of the evening. Their rally, however, came too late, for the lead which they had to overcome was just seven points beyond realization.

Robinson, Cowles and Lamere proved to be the leading figures throughout the conflict. They made good in nearly all their free throws from the different parts of the court, and had their eye upon the goal at all stages.

Tatro and Rainear were the bright lights of the freshman forces. The former is a center of no mean ability, while the latter is a fine offensive man. As a team, 1919 gives promise of being a strong contender for the cup, her chief weakness being apparently in the fact that individualism plays a prominent part in her floor operations. Consistent practice is bound to result in the formation of a quintet which will deeply impress the minds of some hundred or more freshmen. Summary:

SENIORS	FRESHMEN
Lamere, l. f.	Ruether, r. g.

Civics Club.

The weekly meeting of the Civics Club held on January 12, had for its topic "Party Politics and Present Presidential Possibilities." The speaker was Helen Kenrick, '16. General party organization and method were outlined and the probable issues of the coming Presidential campaign were discussed. Ella Drake, '16, Helen Cussons, '17, Marina Holmes, '19, spoke briefly of the possible candidates from the different parties.

On Wednesday, January 19, Professor Morgan spoke to the club on the general subject of social work. He gave a brief statement concerning the organization of the State Conference of Charities and Correction held at Burlington recently. He also emphasized the need of and opportunities for college trained women in this field, which is at present so far from overcrowded.

A large attendance at the meetings of the club show that it is proving very interesting to the girls. It is also showing itself to be very valuable in awakening interest in certain fields that had been, up to this time, rather sadly neglected by the Women's College.

Phi Mu Gamma Gives Dance.

The first annual dance of Rho of Phi Mu Gamma was held Saturday, January 22, in the McCullough Gymnasium. The Gymnasium was prettily decorated with festoons of blue and black, and with evergreens.

The patrons and patronesses were: Miss Eleanor Ross, Prof. and Mrs. MacGilton, Miss Bertha Wood, Prof. and Mrs. Bonney. The guests were Miss Helen Arnold of Worcester, Mass., Miss Ethel Washburn of Springfield, Vt., the Misses Fisher, Bullis, Rowland, Bodurtha, Hobbs, Ball, Simms, Diehl, Marsh, and Doody of Middlebury.

Banshee Pledges.

The Banshees have pledged the following new members: Louesa Bullis, Katherine Ball, Marjorie Leach, Helen Linnell, Marjorie Mackenzie, Charlotte Marsh, Marjorie Phelps, Doris Richards, Faith Walker, Ruth Hall, Helen Simms.

Deutscher Verein.

President and Mrs. Thomas entertained the Deutscher Verein at their home on the evening of January 14. After a brief business meeting there followed an interesting program of anecdotes, current events, etc. Professor Davison read a very amusing story and President Thomas sang some songs in true German style. Light refreshments were served and then the company broke up amid a babel of "Guten Abends."

President Thomas Goes South.

President John M. Thomas leaves tomorrow for a few weeks sojourn in Florida to obtain a much needed rest and to recuperate from his recent illness. Mrs. Thomas and children, John and Sarah, will leave on Saturday, joining the president in New York.

EDITORIAL.

Student Government.

The idea of a student government association among the men of Middlebury College, relative to which recommendations are made in another column, merits the careful thought of every man in the student body, for two reasons: first, that the aforesaid, in some form, is about to become a reality; and second, because of the very necessity that such an organization should exist. Concerning the efficacy or desirability of a self-governing body among the undergraduates, we need not speak here. It must stand upon its own merit, and success or failure must of necessity depend upon the eventual form that it assumes, and the co-operation of the students themselves in recognizing its powers and enforcing what may be decreed. But concerning the conditions responsible for calling it into existence, much may, and should be said.

In the first place, we deprecate the fact that there is need for such an organization. An American college is about as democratic an institution as exists within the confines of our broad land, and, as such, gives to those among its numbers certain peculiar advantages, among them a large element of individual freedom. It demands in return a reasonable adherence to prescribed rules of conduct, and a generous loyalty to its good order, traditions, and wholesome ideals. It expects the members of its student body to comport themselves like gentlemen, and feel their responsibility for personal conduct and the fair name of the institution to which they boast allegiance.

With the amount of freedom that the average college student enjoys, it is to be expected that there will be a certain amount of horse-play. It seems to be quite natural for college men to rid themselves of pent-up enthusiam by some so-called "rough house" stunts, usually in a spirit of fun. But when a small minority persistently make it one of the principal occupations of their college course, to the detriment of college property, student comfort, and discipline, is it not time that a halt was called somewhere?

It is to be deplored that a repetition of events which merit the disapproval of the entire student body, have compelled the college authorities to call into existence some sort of organization endowed with repressive powers.

We believe that college spirit should be, and is, such as to discountenance these practices, and that a repetition of them should be met with summary action on the part of the student body. THE CAMPUS condemns them unqualifiedly, and believes that if some organization must come, the student body should stand solidly back of the authorities in evolving some plan designed for the best interests of all concerned.

The Winter Carnival.

(Dartmouth Outing Club.)

In recent years the annual Winter Carnival of the Dartmouth Outing Club at Hanover, New Hampshire, has come to be a center of interest in skiing and snowshoeing for the United States. With Switzerland entirely surrounded by warring nations, that old world Mecca for winter sports must surrender to this country its leadership on snow and ice, and headquarters have been transferred from St. Moritz to Hanover.

The carnival as planned by the Outing Club this year will far eclipse any affair of the sort undertaken on this side of the Atlantic. Thanks to the generosity of the honorary president of the club, Rev. John E. Johnson, '66, the Winter Carnival will be subsidized by endowment, thereby making possible the proper attention to all details.

As was the case last year, the feature of the festivities will be an intercollegiate ski and snowshoe meet, comprising a varied program of dashes and cross country runs for both skiman and snowshoer, and a ski-jumping contest. Prizes will be offered by the Club for winners in all events.

Students in any American or Canadian college or university are invited to compete, and it is particularly hoped that teams of several men will be able to represent their institution. All competitors will be considered the guests of the Club during their stay in Hanover, receiving board and lodging, and also complimentary tickets to all carnival affairs. The only expense incident to competing in the meet will be the fare to and from Hanover.

In addition to the out-door events, a program of various social and athletic functions has been arranged which includes performances by the Dartmouth Dramatic Association and the Dartmouth Clubs, the Carnival Ball, a supper dance, an international hockey game with the University of Bishops College, and a basketball game with Yale. The festivities begin with the supper dance at six o'clock Thursday, February 10, and close Saturday night with the concert. The ski and snowshoe events will be held on the afternoons of Friday and Saturday, February 11 and 12.

It is of incidental interest that representatives of certain moving picture concerns will be on hand to record the affair.

COMMUNICATIONS

January 12, 1916.

The Waubanakee Society,
Middlebury College.

Gentlemen:

For a long time the administrative officers of the college have desired a more explicit recognition on the part of the students of their part of the responsibility for the good order and good name of the college, and also more active effort on the part of students in restraining practices that are harmful and promoting good customs and wholesome ideals.

The general sentiment of the college strongly favors good order, gentlemanly conduct, and loyal conformity to the regulations and usages of the institution. It is recognized that the college is conducted in the interest of its students, that their interests and rights are conscientiously studied, and that every effort is made to increase the advantages and opportunities which Middlebury students enjoy.

There may be no one in our midst who would purposely set out to injure the college, either in its internal order or in its good name before the public, but from time to time through carelessness, or the desire for adventure, or perhaps merely the fortuitous concurrence of unfortunate circumstances, events occur which injure the college, sometimes with the destruction of property and the injury of buildings, perhaps more often with interruption of study hours and the good order of the institution.

The officers of a modern college do not regard themselves as police officers. They are not guardians nor nightwatchmen. The prevention of disorder and the maintenance of honorable and gentlemanly student practices ought to be the work of the students themselves. The larger the measure of self-government on the part of the students of our own college, the better it will be for us all.

I should like to see among the men a strong, student self-governing organization, that would promote all wholesome usages and discourage and stamp out all unworthy practices. I have noted with gratification very proper efforts of your organization to effect improvements about the college, as for example the request that the campus be lighted at night and suggestions for an improved method of dealing with absences. It seems to the administration committee that in your society is a promising beginning of the self-government of Middlebury men. Therefore with the approval of this committee, I wish to ask you, for the remainder of this year at least, to increase your activities to include the prevention of breaches of good order and the furtherance of gentlemanly conduct in the entire student body.

I make this request in the hope that during the remainder of the year a practical plan of self-government may be worked out, either by the formation of a new organization for that purpose, or by such changes in your own organization as shall make it adequate permanently for the work we have in mind.

In order that you may have full opportunity to work out this result, the committee is minded to announce to the students that it will co-operate cordially with you in any efforts you may see fit to make to introduce effective regulations concerning student residences, study hours, conduct in college buildings and about the campus, maintenance of the good name of the college before the public, and all matters of conduct and character bearing upon the good name of the college. So far as possible we shall expect your work to be among the students themselves, without the necessity of faculty action, and preventive rather than disciplinary, but if in individual cases it is necessary for official action to follow your recommendations, we shall expect to give you that sanction and co-operation without which any plan of college government would prove ineffective.

Faithfully yours,
JOHN M. THOMAS.

[EDITOR'S NOTE—The Campus is indebted to Professor Duane L. Robinson of the faculty for the privilege of publishing, for the benefit of its readers, the following very interesting letter from Mr. F. G. Witts of London, Eng.]

22 Allison Rd., Hornsey,
London, N., December 29, 1915.

DEAR ROBINSON:

This to wish you and yours from Mrs. Witts and myself a happy and prosperous New Year. I have kept your long letter of January last and have just read it over again. Do you remember it?

We were very pleased to know at first hand how Americans looked upon the war and its origin and we shall be further delighted if you will let us know how opinion runs at the present time. We in England have thought that America has been very long-suffering in putting up with indignities—too much so I would say if I did not reserve in the back of my mind thought that we are of course biased in our own favor, besides not having a close acquaintance with conditions and ideas as the American finds them, and so not in a position to judge. I have a friend who is an English professor in the Japanese Naval College at Etajima and have just received a long letter from him. He says that the Japanese are out to play their own hand—most nations and people are—and that they have a great admiration for Germany's successes. This struck me as quite a new point of view or rather an unusual one, though I know it is the reason given for the adhesion of Bulgaria to the Central Powers and the abstention of Greece and Roumania from our side. Yet the land successes of the Germans are balanced by the water success of the navies and each is due to previous preparation. Germany has succeeded because she had planned beforehand, but these successes are not unqualified. Perhaps my friend is of a pessimistic temperament, I have thought so over other matters, at any rate I should be interested to know how you view the situation.

But you will be most interested to know how the war has affected me as an individual. Looking back to the early part of the year I remember how married men and elderly men banded together to form Voluntary Training Corps. I considered joining them but came to the conclusion that I could do my part best by taking up the Scout Movement for the boys. Though Baden-Powell has always emphasized that the Scout Movement was not military, yet it is so in so far as a citizen should be prepared to defend his home and country. The movement has received a tremendous fillip through the war, though Scoutmasters and assistants were among the first to enlist. With many new Scouts and fewer Scoutmasters there was room for me to take up the work and more, it is the finest educational movement of the time, Do you know much about it? A week ago the two Handbooks of the Scouts of America—one for Scoutmasters and one for Scouts—came into my hands and I find them magnificent—even an improvement on our scheme at home here and I note they have the best men of the country to back them up.

You see from my first sheet that I am running a troop in connection with the school, and it was not long before I took over the charge of the Local Association containing four other troops.

The months of September, October, and November were very unpleasant ones. The campaign in the newspapers and on the posters to get recruits by the voluntary system resulted in a system that was far from voluntary. No post would be offered to men of military age. Every man that looked under forty was the magnet for many eyes in the streets. The force of public opinion was such that it was felt that every man ought to be in khaki and yet human nature directed that that man should be any man but the one to whom the critic was intimately related. Have I made myself clear? Take my own case: my conscience told me my turn had not yet come, yet in the street I was eyed, sometimes girls would make indirect remarks, and believe me, I was not alone in this, every man felt it. It was a relief when Lord Derby's scheme came along. Finally I applied for permission to enlist, but the Education Authority refused to release me, so many had already gone. Then they gave permission to enlist under Lord Derby's scheme and in fact almost enforced it by saying that anyone not so enlisting by the end of November would have no consideration as to salary and post being kept open. This again is practically compulsion, though compulsion was hardly needed. Of the 46 classes I am class 42. The general opinion is that our class will not be reached before the war is ended and even if it is there must be a few months before we are in active service. My youngest brother has been in France three months and the last month on the firing line. Another is in Essex on duty there and the eldest has a commission in a Bicyclist Corps.

It makes one feel old when one's boys are in the ranks. Our school is only ten years old. I suppose upwards of 400 boys have passed through the school and of these we know of half who have joined the forces. One of my boys who left in 1913 has just received a commission after having been wounded in the trenches. He has as trophies a German helmet and an Iron Cross. He had a personal encounter in a trench with a German officer. He thrust his bayonet through the man's thigh and finally killed him with his entrenching tool. Horrible, isn't it?

It doesn't do to dwell on these things. The war has been brought home to us by such tales as these, by the darkened streets, and by Zeppelin raids. The Germans fail to realize how they suffer resistance and promote recruiting by their raids. It was after the last raid that I determined to enlist. One feels one must do something. The worst part of the raid is the helpless feeling; one must be prepared to suffer without being able to escape or to retaliate.

Well, we are living in exciting times. The war will end some day, I suppose, but nobody thinks of calling halt. The question is, "Who will give up first?"

We have had a very quiet Xmas all to ourselves, the first like that for many years. Last year we had Belgians with us. We hope you have had a happy Xmas and that your little family is quite well.

Kindly regards from us both.

Yours sincerely,

F. G. WITTS.

EDITOR-IN-CHIEF CAMPUS:

Dear Sir—Men from your college are cordially invited to attend the Seventh Annual Winter Carnival of the Dartmouth Outing Club at Hanover, New Hampshire, February 10-12 inclusive, and to compete in the second intercollegiate ski and snowshoe meet.

The purpose of this gathering is rather to give impetus to the movement for outdoor sport in American and Canadian colleges by means of friendly co-operation than merely to conduct an intercollegiate competition. Last year seven colleges and universities participated in the Winter Carnival events; this year we expect to have a much larger attendance.

Whatever publicity you can give the project in your columns will be greatly appreciated.

The enclosed folder treats the matter in considerable detail. The Club will take great pleasure in furnishing additional information to those interested.

Very truly yours,

L. H. BELL,

Secretary Dartmouth Outing Club.

COLLEGE NOTES.

'81. The J. B. Lippincott Co. has just issued a book entitled "Surgical and Gynaecological Nursing," by Edward Mason Parker, M. D., F. A. C. S., and Scott Dudley Breckenridge, M. D., F. A. C. S. Dr. Parker is a graduate of Middlebury College and is now surgeon to Providence hospital, Washington, D. C.

Christine Webster, '18, is planning to entertain the Pi Beta Phi girls next Saturday evening with a sleigh ride to her home in Whiting, Vt.

Mrs. Edgar A. Brown (Beulah Wilkinson, ex-'17), and Mrs. N. S. Gooding, '03, of Rutland, Vt., recently visited friends on the hill.

Class Debate.

The class in argumentation and debate held its debate Tuesday evening at 7 o'clock in the men's chapel. The subject was: "Resolved, That the United States should Immediately provide for an Increase in the Navy." The affirmative was upheld by Hollister, Adams and Miller; the negative by Wright, Mitchell and H. M, Davis. The judges were Professors Wetherell and Morgan. The decison was in favor of the negative. Professor Cunningham, who gives the course, presided. The course in argumentation and debate is a strong, practical course and one in which more of the students should take an active part.

Notice.

The Treasurer will be at the Warner Science Hall on Friday, February 4, Saturday, February 5, and Monday, February 7 to receive payment of the second semester bills.

Score, Seniors 16, Freshmen 9; goals from floor, Lamere 5, Cowles 2, Robinson 1, Tatro 2, Jenne 1; goals from fouls, Tatro 3; referee, Coach Holmes; umpire, Coach Murch; timekeeper, Lang; time, 15 minute halves.

Juniors vs. Sophomores.

The second game was somewhat slower than the first, as there was a good deal of holding and outside play. Both teams had practically the same line-ups as last year and the sophomores showed the good effects derived from playing together last season. They developed team work which is bound to defeat the most brilliant individual work in the end.

The sophomores barely obtained a lead of 7 to 6 in the first half, but when Parker began an accurate bombardment of the juniors' basket at the start of the second period, there was nothing to it but sophomores, although Hubbard and Damon each caged a basket before time was called, making the final score 16 to 11.

The lineup:

JUNIORS	SOPHOMORES
Vaughn, l. f.	Christian, r. g.
Hollister, r. f.	Myrick, l. g.
Hubbard, c.	Parker, c.
Hard, l. g.	Gorham, r. f.
Damon, r. g.	Good, l. f.

Summary: goals from floor, Hubbard 2, Vaughn 1, Damon 1, Parker 5, Good 2; goals from fouls, Hubbard 3, Parker 1, Good 1; time, 15 minute halves.

Freshmen 11—Sophomores 7.

In a game featured by long shots and close guarding by both teams, the freshmen managed to get the big end of the score in their first contest of the winter with their deadly rivals, the sophomores. There was the keenest rivalry between the men from the very start and the result was always in doubt—until with the last minute or two of play.

The freshmen showed improvment over the work of the previous games, with the result that much of the individual work was dropped for the sake of team work.

Jenne and Tatro were the shining lights for the first year men, while Parker, aided by Good, was about the whole show for the sophomores. In reality, Parker put up one of the best all around games seen in the gymnasium for some time; his three baskets going through the net as cleanly as they make them. The sophomores were weakened in the latter part of the game when Good wrenched his hip and was forced to retire, Mead going in at Seniors 19—Juniors 17.

The Senior basket ball team scored a 19 to 17 victory over the Junior five in a spirited contest on the local courts Wednesday, January 19. Every member of each team was prepared for the hardest kind of a game, and from the sounding of the whistle until time was called at the end of the game, every man played his hardest and best. Robinson played a fine defiensive game and his floor work was responsible for the good showing of the Senior team. Lamere and Parker were features in the scoring column. Hubbard, Coates and Hard were the main stays of the purple quintet and fully lived up to to their reputations. Hard guarded his man very closely and also did some fine passing. Hubbard used his clever dribble to an advantage while advancing the ball from under the senior basket.

Ferguson started the scoring for the seniors with a basket soon after the tip off. Baskets in quick succession by Lamere, Hubbard and Parker gave the the seniors a lead of 6 to 2. The game was rough but clean. Close guarding on both sides prevailed during the first half, which ended with the seniors one point in the lead, 11 to 10. The juniors then came back in the second half with a different style of play. Instead of working the ball up close to the basket for a short. easy shot, they tried long chances and tried to follow them up for goals. Robinson and Condit however spoiled all these attempts. They were always on hand when the ball rebounded from the back board and broke up many short tries on the part of the juniors. Hollister replaced Quirk in the last part of the game and put up a very good defensive game. The alteration of the junior team seemed to be very profitable for Coates was very clever at shooting and seemed to work very well with the other members of the team.

NEW MIDDLEBURY SONGS.

The following new Middlebury songs have been contributed by Miss M. L. Chaffee of the class of 1908.

THE CALL.

Kind o'er thee doth nature smile,
Mountain heights thy mission see,
Joyous song bursts forth the while,
Middlebury, "Hail to Thee".

Alma Mater, use thy might
Born of service, honest, free,
For the pure, the just, the right,
Sons and daughters trust in thee.

Noble college, down the years,
Of all good the leader be;
—Visions of earth's need appears,—
Coming ages call to thee.

MIDDLEBURY, LEAD US ON.

Alma Mater, trusted, true,
Seeking hearts are turned to you,
Guide us in each duty new,
Middlebury, lead us on.

To a work that is ardent, strong,
To a faith that shrinks from wrong;
Earnestly we raise our song,
Middlebury, lead us on.

Thoughts of courage, hope, inspire,
With a nobler purpose fire,
To a vision ever higher,
Middlebury, lead us on.

MIDDLEBURY, EVERMORE!

Winding near the Otter flows,
Round thy walls the ivy grows,
Each new day thy beauty shows,
Middlebury, evermore,

Noble aims their impulse lend,
To the highest goal they tend,
Zeal that spurs on till the end—
Middlebury, evermore!

Deeds of worth have won thee fame;
Honor now attends thy name,
Proud are thy rights to claim.
Middlebury, evermore!

Hon. M. J. Hapgood Delivers Address.

Hon. M. J. Hapgood of Peru, Vt., delivered an address in the McCullough gymnasium Friday evening, January 21, on the subject, "What Vermont Expects of Middlebury Students". Mr. Hapgood's discourse was enjoyed by a large number of students and members of the faculty.

"JOAKS."

Heard in Chemistry—

My Billy, 'tis of thee,
Our steam baths more of thee,
Sweet Billee, Janitor,
Of thee more steam;
We want it all the time,
For to reduce the lime,
When we precipitate
Our dolomite!

German 3. Reuther translating:

"The horse looked at me as though to say, 'what is that empty space'."

Professor Davison, pointing to the German word, "damit", says that Mark Twain remarks, "That word was my chief source of consolation, until I found out that the accent was not on the first syllable".

Seniors. Sophomores and Freshmen.
